The number of young people diagnosed with anxiety disorders is at an all-time high, and “everyday anxiety” is challenging children, teens and families alike.

In this seminar, Bec Wooley will pull apart the origins of anxiety and how it manifests in young people. She will cover various strategies and techniques to assist parents and/or caregivers to support their daughter/s to recognise and manage feelings of anxiety.

With an emphasis on constructive responding and collaborative skill-building, attendees will leave with practical tools to assist the young people in their lives to “feel the fear and do it anyway”.
